UNFINISHED CABINETRY

Unfinished cabinetry needs to be sealed and finished quickly to reduce the chance of damage before installation. The moisture gain or loss on unfinished cabinetry that is exposed to wide humidity changes can occur very rapidly. This can cause excessive splitting and/or warping. Unfinished cabinetry is more susceptible to staining from liquids, oils and smoke. In many cases, the unfinished cabinetry can be ruined, especially if not stored properly.

Consequently, any finish issues will not be covered under warranty and will not be considered a defect or reason for replacement by Koch Cabinets. If cabinets are not finished within 2 weeks of delivery date, all warranty will be void.

I have read the above information, and I acknowledge that Koch Cabinets will not be held responsible for any finish issues of the unfinished cabinetry I have chosen.
